COVID-19 Outbreak Supply Chain Resilience Update

Dear Cosette,

We wanted to share an update on our Global Supply Chain resilience. Currently, most of our Global Supply Chain and manufacturing base are operational. As countries around the world re-open their economies, we are positioned to scale our operation and respond to increased demand.

Temporary limitations on the manufacture of some products in Mexico are set to expire at the end of the month. We have been in full compliance with all government mandates. We have received approval to start making some additional products. We are also preparing to restart all operations and resume full production on June 1 in accordance with the latest government guidance.

We have mobilized our global footprint to minimize risk and will have additional capacity on-line in the United States. We are doing everything we can to support our customers in accordance with the government mandates, but we are projecting potential delays in order delivery for some products. We will notify you of any specific concerns.

To help us better plan, we request that you provide us with your requirements as much in advance as possible.

Our highest priority is ensuring the health and safety of our employees, customers and suppliers. We have proactively implemented strong protective measures that meet and/or exceed government mandates around the globe to keep our employees healthy and minimize risk.

We appreciate your continued support during this challenging time. Velcro Companies is committed to remaining your trusted supplier and will maintain our vigilance in managing this situation. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact Brad Minter at 603-247-8471.

Sincerely,
